

Ms S. Rose

Trustee biography

Passionate about safeguarding, Safron is a child protection specialist, who qualified as a social worker in 1990. She has held several operational and strategic posts, and prior to setting up her own safeguarding consultancy company, she was Director of Children's Services for London and the South East at the NSPCC for ten years.

She has managed a broad range of multi-disciplinary services that protect and promote the wellbeing and welfare of children and young people. She has been a member of several government advisory groups and is the author of a number of Serious Case Reviews.

In her current consultancy role, she works with diverse organizations and business sectors across England and the Channel Islands to ensure effective child protection policies, procedures and practice. She is also a trustee at a national children's charity.

In her spare time, Safron is a keen skier, enjoys wandering around art galleries, going to the theatre and to trip the light fantastic on the dance floor.
